

noise and stochastics in pdf

Pink noise or $1/f$ noise is a signal or process with a frequency spectrum such that the power spectral density (energy or power per frequency interval) is inversely proportional to the frequency of the signal. Pink noise is the most common signal in biological systems. In pink noise, each octave (halving/doubling in frequency) carries an equal amount of noise energy.

The word stochastic is an adjective in English that describes something that was randomly determined. The word first appeared in English to describe a mathematical object called a stochastic process, but now in mathematics the terms stochastic process and random process are considered interchangeable. The word, with its current definition meaning random, came from German, but it originally ...

A: Trendline Analysis is the one form of Technical Analysis that directs your attention to the price panel first and foremost. Despite the "noise" and low-level retracements along the way, when you have a trendline intact across multiple significant highs or lows, the directional bias of price action is far more accurately and efficiently conveyed than by any combination of Moving Averages ...
